

So here we are with a strange wheel bearing we can't identify and it does not seem to be in most people's catalogue. Finally we came across Bearing Boys. Explaining our problem to them was easy and they asked for a bit of time to search for it and would ring us back. Now normally that is a polite way of saying go away. But 20 minutes later we had a call back and were told that our mysterious bearing was the same as an Indian trishaw and they had 2 in stock. It was sent to us and we had it in 48 hours. Since then they have supplied bearings and oil seals for a range of our bikes and mopeds as well as pulley wheels for lathes and fixings. The range of stock they keep is amazing and we have always been made to feel that our order no matter how big or small was important to them. Presently they are going to be supplying all the engine bearings and seals for our SC4 project rebuilding a 1966 AMC scooter engine.
