

We deal with a lot of strange motorcycle here. From Russian to Eastern European bikes, from British and French and a few more besides. We also have to fabricate bits that are needed to fit these beasts. Where possible we like to standardise on Metric but often we may need something a bit special. When that happens, its Tracy Tools we go to. If it's a tap or a die for cycle thread, or a very special metric pitch. They will have it in stock. Dealing with them is simple and hassle free. The tap may only be needed once but we all want value for money and these are not cheap Chinese imported item. These are workshop quality at a reasonable price. On one occasion we had to tap a bigger headstock needing a special die. We had been quoted £60 for the die but within 3 days the die from Tracy tools was here and at a fraction of the cost. Is there service good yes, is the product good yes, is the delivery good yes. Would we recommend them to others? Without a doubt.

Tracy tools are one of our top go to companies. Once it's ordered from them we can stop worrying.
